WE NOMINATE

One of the largest and most distinguished groups in Town Topics' ten-year history—the 176 Princetonnians who were honored this past week by Civil Defense officials for having contributed a minimum of 100 hours to manning this community's Ground Observation Post. At a time when the Air Defense Command is having its difficulties throughout the nation in maintaining minimal aircraft warning services, Princeton can point to a perfect 40-month record. Housewives, businessmen, commuters, teachers, scientists, engineers and 'teen-agers have banded together under the leadership of Hayward Greenland and a staff of enthusiastic captains and have served nearly 15,000 consecutive two-hour tours of duty since "Operation Skywatch" was initiated in July, 1952.

The years of hard work that have been invested in this Princeton-area undertaking conjure up memories of the old refrain, "Nobody knows the trouble I've seen." Five of those receiving awards at the High School—Greenland, John McK. Moore, Elizabeth Bunting Fine, Marguerite Loud McAneny and Elizabeth Hun McAllen—were singled out for having given more than 750 hours to "spotting," but this figure included only the hours spent at the Springdale Road post and not the time consumed by telephone calls and sudden emergencies. Recently Mrs. Fine, the "Wednesday captain," made 81 calls in locating a substitute for a single two-hour watch, while Mary P. Boehme, now retired after 31 years as a teacher, and a "500-hour captain," finally found a Tuesday "fill-in" on her 24th call.

In this Age of Science the Observer Captains, each of whom is responsible for one day a week, are frequently asked, "Why do you do it?" "Why worry about visual spotting when we will soon have 'radar fences'?" They can point to a recent plea from President Eisenhower, urging men and women to give two hours a week to their country, and also emphasize the importance the Air Force attaches to ground observation. However, their most effective answer lies in examples provided by some of their own "regulars." One of them, a specialist in radar here at the David Sarnoff Research Center, who stands a 2:00-4:00 a.m. watch, says: "Those of us who know radar best know its limitations. With land and sea 'clutter', radar is not effective in detecting low-flying aircraft."

The award-winners, 71 of whom are women, are the veterans of the local Corps that is constantly faced with the problem of recruiting volunteers, for each captain must have a roster of 40-50 active persons, if he or she is to provide 'round the-clock coverage (12 two-hour tricks) without imposing on willing individuals. On occasions in the past husband-and-wife teams have assumed responsibility for eight hours of duty in one day, youngsters have cycled across Princeton to lend a hand with the 4:00-6:00 p.m. shift, captains' wives have taken on last-minute assignments and retired professional men have done overtime during the dead-of-the-night watches.

For their patience, perseverance and patriotism in undertaking an all-important and yet thankless task; for prodding thoughts of a stirring statement of yesterday, "Seldom was so much owed by so many to so few;" for their outstanding community service over the years; they are Town Topics' nominees for Unfailing Assistance. Eight years ago this month, TOWN TOPICS went in search of a family which, through no fault of its own, would know none of the joys of Christmas if Princetonians did not come to its assistance. It was the beginning of the prosperous post-war era, and without the medium of the printed word, there might well have been no reason for many a family to know that real hardship existed in the midst of the community.

The response to the appeal for "enough to provide Christmas dinner and a few presents" for a family of 14, whose situation was reported by the Social Service Bureau as "desperate," was overwhelming. Several times the amount sought was received, and in addition to a joyous Christmas, the fund provided badly-needed clothing and special food for under-nourished younger children in the family.

Each year since that time, TOWN TOPICS has conferred with the Social Service Bureau to determine where Princeton's unfailing helping hand might best be directed. The record is the more heart-warming for the permanent good that has been accomplished each year — lasting benefits that can well mean the turning-point in a life-time.

Families whose members might otherwise have been separated through lack of funds have been held together, and have found the way back to the point where they can again care for themselves in competent fashion. Bills of the most fundamental nature — food, fuel, clothing, medicine — have been paid only through the generosity of neighbors who gave at Christmas-time.

Of even greater value than the security provided by financial assistance has been the understanding and sympathy expressed in the act of giving. Case histories at the Social Bureau fully reflect what it has meant to those for whom total despair was replaced by the knowledge that literally hundreds of their neighbors were anxious to help.

Last year the Christmas Fund for the first time sought to aid more than one family, to provide assistance that would enable the Social Service Bureau to go into many homes and make life brighter for "the little people." The record-breaking response from the community has meant more widespread happiness than was possible before, as aid ranged from sending some two dozen youngsters to camp who would otherwise not have known such a rewarding experience, to payment of hospital bills, medical treatment and similar essentials for a number of different families. In true Christmas fashion, in every case it was the children who benefited.

The time of year is once again at hand. Next week, TOWN TOPICS will present a new appeal that will tell of need at Christmas-time, in the belief that those fortunate enough to be able to give will once more step forward to alleviate hardship and sorrow.

Ready and Eager. It was "that time of year," too, for the elderly old soul who has personified Santa Claus to hundreds and hundreds of Princeton area children for the better part of the past decade. Despite the fact that he has reached the age of 70, Henry Schultz again plans to undertake the pleasant but demanding task of talking to his young public for hours at a stretch.

This Week

The story of a Princeton couple who will complete 70 years of married life on Saturday is one of the many features in this week's issue (page 10.) Plans for the expansion of Trinity Church in an area apart from its Mercer Street location are outlined on page 23, while the theatre column (page 5) reviews the current Community Players' production.

Dozens of helpful hints for Christmas buying, this week spotlighting toys, are again contained in "It's New to Us" (page 3), while forecasts of the winter sports season at the high school and university highlight the sport section (pages 19-22.) The "Question of the Week" (page 12) turns political, seeking answers as to whether President Eisenhower should run again.

In the classified section, items for sale range from a brand new station wagon won as a prize and offered at a sizeable reduction, to calendars in Braille, skates, bicycles, home-made cookies, household appliances, mimeograph machines and even a geiger counter. (Pages 26-31.)

Being blind and therefore somewhat apart from the bustling world, Mr. Schultz counts the fortnight before Christmas as the happiest time of his life. He is as eager to begin talking to the children who want to hear Santa Claus as the most enthusiastic child is to learn what Christmas morning has brought him.

Each year, Princeton merchants contribute to a fund that reminds "Santa Claus" that no one forgets him, particularly if he is blind and advancing in years. Next week, Town Topics will list the telephone number and the hours when he may be called.

Special Letter Box. Children who want to emphasize their requests to Mr. Claus by writing after they telephone will find a special mail box in Palmer Square. It will be placed there by the Princeton Lions Club, and will be —Continued on Page 2

So Far, So Good. Apparently cognizant of this community's sincere intention to hack the statewide Holiday Safety Campaign to the hilt, Princeton area motorists performed well during the first 10 days of the all-out effort and participated in only one serious-injury accident (see story elsewhere in Topics of the Town). Their overall caution was reflected in both Borough and Township court sessions, where action against traffic violators was unusually light this week.

Lauding Princeton's community-service clubs for their help in circulating information about the campaign (November 21 through January 2), the Borough Traffic Safety Committee—spearheading

Slate Clean To Date

With 10 days of the 1955 Holiday Safety Campaign in the record books, Borough Police Chief John H. Smith reported that his department has investigated no accidents deemed serious enough to report to the State Attorney General, who is keeping close tabs on bad traffic violations during the campaign period.

The chief's boxscore: November 21—child sideswiped by car, minor injuries; November 21—hit-and-run resulting in bent fender on parked auto; November 22—"day dreaming" boy on bicycle side-swiped by car; November 23—slight collision, bent fenders only. Referring specifically to the bike mishap, the chief pointed out that better parental control is badly needed to eliminate careless bike-riding in Princeton.

Statewide, the Attorney General announced that nine persons have been killed on New Jersey highways since the start of the campaign, November 21, compared with 20 during the same period last year. The victims included five pedestrians, three drivers and one passenger.

the program here — reported it was sure most drivers knew of the concentrated drive and would be extra-careful. Committee members said parents of all school pupils were advised of the campaign through their children, who were asked to produce special signed cards from their parents, pledging safe driving on national S-D Day, December 1.

In reviewing minor Borough accidents during the initial phase of this year's holiday program (see box, this page), the committee noted one near-tragic mishap involving a head-in-the-clouds boy on a bicycle. Members commented on the fact youngsters must be safe bike-riders today in order to be good auto-drivers tomorrow, and urged all Princeton boys and girls to abide by these enforced bicycle regulations: (1) Don't ride on sidewalks; (2) Follow car laws at stoplights; (3) See that your bike has proper lights for night riding; and (4) Ride single-file, avoiding double-breast conversations.

While the Borough group focused its attention this week on "motorists of tomorrow" who help cause traffic accidents today, State Banking and Insurance Commissioner Charles R. Howell reminded New Jersey drivers that "an important by-product" of their cooperation with the safety campaign "may be found in reduced automobile liability and property damage rates." The commissioner observed that "such rates are based upon actual experience recorded by the insured motorists" and stressed "that the insuring public makes the rates—not the insurance companies."

Bike-Striker Not Guilty. Highlights of the week's court cases before Borough Magistrate Paul R. Cheseboro were dismissals for two men charged with careless driving, George E. Rinz of Hopewell, absolved of any blame in side-swiping the above-mentioned bike-riding boy, and Harrison Fraker, 130 Library Place, freed after proving that his auto, if and when driven carelessly, was operated by a Chicago house guest. Otherwise, the magistrate was called on only to fine five Princeton area residents and two visitors for routine traffic violations.

Those fined from this community included: Mrs. Edith S. Rechtf, Rosedale Road, $15 for speeding; Miss Helen M. Clark, 30 Vandeventer Street, $10 for speeding; Rosendo Santiago, Canal Road, Rocky Hill, $14 for passing a red light; David Chalfin, Graduate College, $12 for passing a "stop" sign; and Mrs. Sara W. Harris, 144 John Street, $5 court costs (fine waived) for going the wrong way on a one-way street. Mrs. Harris' neighbor, Mrs. Mollie Mitnaul, 145 John Street, paid a $14 fine for making an illegal U-turn, while Leyton Carter, Quaker Road, paid $15 for speeding.

At Township Hall, John F. Becker, 177 Terhune Road, arrived at the clerk's office before the regularly-scheduled court session and was assessed $20 for disregarding a "stop" sign, "double the normal fine" because the de-

It's New to Us

Just imagine. Some of the happiest Christmas gifts you can buy a child are the ones that unleash his imagination, or give his mind a nudge in some new direction.

Take the movie wheel at Stuff and Nonsense (10 Moore) for an example. This is a topless cylinder with a handle on the bottom and slots at regular intervals around its circumference. Inside, a child arranges figures that he has made and colored. Then when he twists the cylinder by its handle and peers through the spinning slots, he sees his figures move like those in a comic strip. ($4).

Stuff also has Animal Solitaire, a collection of different animal heads and bodies that can be put together in hilarious combinations. ($2). Also small animals that you put together like a puzzle, sticking them to window, metal tray or table. They pull right off—no glue involved. In this toy, you have a choice of circus animals, fairy-tale figures or zoo animals, and each set is $1.50.

Charles Eames' Coloring Toy has many human, architectural and animal figures for a child to color and then put together in any way that suits his fancy. He can make a jumping jack, a fort, an army or a Humpty Dumpty. Mr. Eames has thoughtfully included suggestions, as a starter. Coloring toy is $2 at Stuff. (Eames also has slotted cards like his "house of cards" that you assemble to make a fire-house, garage, or any building you like.)

Puppets! Look at the glittering "royal family" of hand puppets at Pastimes, Washington Crossing. For $3.50 each, you get a white-whiskered king, his consort, a handsome prince and a brace of princesses. Commoners in this realm are $1.95 and include a mustachioed policeman, and various old ladies, young lads, etc. The faces are painted brilliantly on egg-shaped heads.

Pastimes also has the well-loved

Woman's Place

Trend-spotting is a hobby of ours, and we noticed this year even more emphasis than last on realistic, domestic toys for little girls. We predict that 20 years from now there will be a positive surfeit of zealous housewives. We'rever, Mirro aluminum and Reverse copper all have miniatures of their big utensils, starting at $1.75 or so for a set, and there is an incredible number of cooking kits.

No such vocational training is available for boys unless they plan to be detectives, truck drivers or scientists. We didn't find a single kit showing how to play advertising lay-out man or salesman (except Kool-aid).

We hope some militant feminist aunt buys all her nieces Gilbert Chemistry sets.

plush animal puppets from Germany. Incidentally, the Washington Crossing bridge has been completely repaired, and Pastimes is once more accessible to Princeton Shoppers.

At Stuff, there will soon be a pair of Punch and Judy puppets from England, with molded, not painted, faces, and a marvellously wicked black cat puppet made like the Doodlehead of 1954. These haven't arrived in quantity as we write, but they will be along soon.

Both Stuff and Pastimes carry the little spring marionettes four inches high that are operated from the underside of a slatted stage. New characters in the cast include Sambo, the Three Little Pigs and Three Kittens whose lost mittens, a full half-inch long, dangle from string around their necks.

Another kind of make-believe—Lead figures from England. Tiger Auto (26 Witherspoon) has sets of Indians, cowboys, modern soldiers and knights in armor. The Hobby Center, 12 Witherspoon, has a martial array of soldiers from the British army.

Knights at Pastimes have visors that really go up and down. These are only 39c each, 79c mounted. A fort to defend costs $5 or $12.

If the knight in your family is something less than chivalrous, buy him the Dennis the Menace kit we found at Urken's (27 Witherspoon). Contains fake bugs, sugar that won't dissolve, a bottle with a snake that pops out when you squeeze a hidden bulb. Buy — then take cover. (1.98).

Play and Learn. For a child, nothing kills a toy like the label "educational", but for an adult the label can be a useful guide. Look at the mineralogy set at Urken's. Twenty-four nice, big beautiful minerals for $4.98 with a whole chemical analysis kit to help with identification. A small book — not a booklet, but a real little book — goes along. (Kit with just rocks, $2.98).

From the same collector, Urken's has a box of shells, either for display or jewelry making ($2.98). Includes a sea-robe, and science book.

PARKING IN REAR

POINT PROVED: Steven Frolich stopped short of the $64,000 question Tuesday night (taking $32,000) because he felt he had proved his point that a naturalized citizen can show as much interest in the U. S. as those native born. With him are his wife, two-year old Margaret Anne, and four-month old Robert. See below for additional details. (Richards Photo)

Miss Zangrando cut across her path.

$32,000 is Enough. Seed salesman Steven Frolich of Harriet Drive declined to tangle Tuesday with the $64,000 Question on television's Number One show and took home a check for $32,000 from the show's sponsors.

Mr. Frolich said he proved his point on the quiz test, and departed gracefully after having previously answered some difficult questions in American history on the program, including one which had daily newspapers still arguing as he declined.

The naturalized American told quizmaster Hal March that he had wanted to prove that new citizens knew and cared as much about America as the native-born citizen. He felt that winning his way to $32,000 had done so, along with "changing" his life during his five weeks on the program.

"The $64,000 Question", currently rated the top television show in the country in terms of audience interest had wrestled during the week with a Frolich answer of a week ago which had experts taking sides.

The genial Princetonian said a week ago that the 19th amendment to the Constitution was enacted in 1921, (when Vermont ratified it), but the feeling existed that 1920 was the answer, since two-thirds of the states had ratified the woman suffrage act by then.

Man Hit on Kingdon Road. Probable citations against both motorists, one for illegal parking and the other for careless driving, this week were pending the recovery of James S. Dennen, 22 Chestnut Street, well-known Princeton mail carrier who was struck on Kingdon Road by the —Continued on Page 7 defendant failed to answer an earlier summons. Then, when court got under way, Magistrate Louis R. Gerber fined Robert C. Strom, 100 Stockton Street, $15 for speeding and Richard H. Harmon, 11 Shirley Court, $20 for careless driving, the latter because a half-consumed beer bottle overruled the defendant's contention that another auto ran him off the road into a telephone pole.

The final matter on the Township agenda involved careless driving charges against Mrs. Frances Saunders, 433 Walnut Lane and Miss Marguerite Zangrando of Hampton, who collided during a snowstorm on State Highway 206 as Miss Zangrando was negotiating a cross-highway turn onto Cherry Hill Road. Magistrate Gerber fined Mrs. Saunders $15 and dismissed the complaint against Miss Zangrando, despite the fact that Mrs. Saunders, visibly shaken, maintained that Fred Porter, investigating officer, had advised her that she was not at fault.

Following adjournment of court, Officer Porter was criticized openly by the magistrate for making such a statement at the scene of an accident, since he was intruding on a decision to be rendered by the court. Observers who witnessed both the court proceeding and the ensuing criticism agreed with Mr. Gerber's words of advice to the officer, but wondered why Miss Zangrando was not asked to testify at all, especially since Mrs. Saunders was driving straight ahead on a main highway and

A lively and amusing version of Lynn Riggs' "Roadside" is now on display at Murray Theatre on the University Campus, courtesy of the Princeton Community Players. Tickets for the performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday may be obtained through the University Store and nightly at the Murray box office (tel. 3539).

As is always the case with the Community Players, a good cast makes the evening enjoyable. The performers in "Roadside" are all above average and with pace and business provided by director Alan Downer, they carry off the play in good order.

Lynn Riggs' work is certain fun and worthy of admiration as a native American folk drama. Its spirit is high, rambunctious, full of gusto, fine dialect and American candor and amusement about oneself.

The playwright's symbolic picture of the spirit of conquering the West is presented gracefully in the midst of active goings-on, and while you laugh away the supernatural origins of his cowboy hero, he can make you feel a mythical power instead.

The Players had notable good fortune in having William Lane in the role of the cowboy Texas. He's just as tall as the part is, has the accent by nature, and a wonderful smile to round out the physical requirements.

As a matter of fact, if Mr. Lane lacks some of the rambunctiousness you might expect in Texas, he has an impish quality that goes exceptionally well in the stage role. The life he brings in great size to the play more than overbalances some imperfections of motion or speech rhythm.

Marylou Kelly was spirited and attractive as Hannie, counterpart of Texas and eventually (presumably, that is) his wife. While quite often tripped up in her long speeches, Miss Kelly had the energy to back up her sassy role.

Henry Siegle, who seems to improve steadily as a performer, was careful and therefore successful in creating the role of the farmer Buzzey Hale, the most important combination of comedy and seriousness in the play.

Though less polished, no one in the remainder of the cast let the rest of the group down for a minute. The comedy group of Edward Ansell and James Hopkins (as Black Ike and Red Ike), Nicholas Muller Jr. and Lee Glasoff created a lot of fun despite natural imperfections, while the forces of law and order, Al Goodman, Edmund Keeley and Samuel Frantz, handled their parts very well.

All together, it was a good Community Players' cast, well-handled. Six out of ten were newcomers to the Players' stage, and a survey of occupations would show a slightly amazing variety. Nevertheless, they played together as if they had for weeks, instead of snatching rehearsal time from their normally busy lives.

The physical production was at a good level for the organization, and like the performers, was ready for opening night. It's nice to have a pleasant Community Players' production on hand.

McCARTER THEATRE

While tickets continue to move steadily for the single performance of "Spoon River" by Daniel Reed (scheduled for Thursday, December 15), the McCarter this week announced the premiere of John Van Druten's new comedy, "Dancing in the Chequered Shade", for Christmas week.

Under another novel booking arrangement, the Van Druten premiere will run Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday only (December 20-23), advancing opening night and omitting shows on Saturday (Christmas Eve).

Tickets for both Daniel Reed and "Dancing in the Chequered Shade" may now be obtained by mail or at the McCarter box office. The new box office telephone is 5515.

"Spoon River" is creating considerable interest here for a number of reasons. One is the chance to hear parts of the Edgar Lee Masters "poem of personalities"; another the high reputation of Mr. Reed's rarely-seen performance, and also the notable position of Mr. Reed himself in American theatre of this century.

Daniel Reed's career over more than four decades has covered the field. He has had an amazing variety of roles since he was ten, in all kinds of theatre.

Few (American-born) actors can point to having been brought in to play a Cockney father of Pygmalion in Mrs. Patrick Campbell's company, to having joined the Norwegian National Theatre and the Welsh National Theatre when they needed replacements, and to having been asked to join the Yiddish theatre.

Charlie Chaplin called Reed "a school for actors" after hearing a private performance of "Spoon River". And the actor has also written a play in which Ethel Barrymore acted, coached Bette Davis in Cockney to send her on to stardom in "Of Human Bondage", and cast Katherine Hepburn in her first part.

Christmas Week Premiere. Princeton will have the first chance to see the newest Van Druten comedy when "Dancing in the Chequered Shade" premieres here Tuesday through Friday of Christmas Week.

With a list like "Voice of the Turtle" (one of the ten all-time long run hits in New York), "I Remember Mama", "Bell, Book and Candle" and "I Am a Camera" the most recent of his successes, VanDruten is naturally ranked as —Continued on Page 6

Music in Princeton

PRINCETON SYMPHONY

An unusual and important musical event is scheduled for Saturday, December 17, when the Princeton Symphony Orchestra will play its concert in memory of the late Dr. Albert Einstein, with the great pianist Robert Casadesus as soloist.

The tribute to the renowned man of science will include the piano concerto in honor of the Emperor of Austria by Mozart, Dr. Einstein's favorite composer, as well as Corelli's "Christmas Concerto," Haydn's "London Symphony" and the Bach Sonata from the Cantata "Gottes Zeit ist die allerbeste Zeit." All of the composers are masters from the classical period which Dr. Einstein preferred above all others.

The Mozart concerto will be Robert Casadesus' own tribute to Einstein, as well as his personal contribution to the Princeton Symphony Orchestra, for which he and the late doctor served as honorary vice-presidents from its start.

The two "adopted" Princetonians played music together on occasion and their residence here signifies much about the community as a present-day center of thought and art.

The Christmas concert in its way will also signify something universal, in that an American orchestra will play works by Italian, Austrian and German masters, with a native of France as soloist and a native of Hungary, Nicholas Harsanyi, as conductor — all in honor of the German scientist who made Princeton his final home.

Ticket demand is already high, and prompt action is recommended to those who wish to attend. Tickets at $2, $2.50 and $3 are all that remain, with the lowest prices having already been sold out. They may be purchased through the Princeton University Store (Tel. 3333).

Seminary Concert, The Oratorio Choir of Princeton Theological Seminary will sing Part One of "The Messiah" by George Frederick Handel this Tuesday evening, December 6, at 7:45 in Miller Chapel on the Seminary Campus. No tickets are required for admission.

Soloists for the performance will be Martha Dooley, soprano; Betty Jane Wilson, alto; Alexander McKelway and Arlo Duba, tenors, and James McKeever, bass. Dr. David Hugh Jones will conduct, with Marilyn Davidson as accompanist.

Joint Glee Club Concert. The Girls' Ensemble of Princeton High School and the Hun School Glee Club will present a joint concert this Sunday, December 4, at 4 p.m. in the Hun School. The public is invited.

The concert program will include Christmas carols, as well as Fred Waring's arrangement of "Twas the Night Before Christmas." Thomas Hilbish directs both the 21-voice PHS Girls Ensemble and the 24-voice Hun Glee Club.

one of the most successful of our dramatists.

With Walter Starke producing and Mr. Van Druten directing, there has been talk that the forthcoming production may do for a new young actress what "I Am a Camera" (with the same combination) did for Julie Harris. The newcomer is Marjorie Steele, an American whose only major roles have been in England.

She is chief among a group of four young people who live and love explosively in Greenwich Village. The others who work and play in the Village are Donald Holton, James Congdon and Barbara Sohmers.

Princeton High Production. "I Remember Mama", the winning adaptation by John Van Druten which won stage success and later became the base for a television show, may be seen this Friday and Saturday, December 2 and 3, in a production by students of Princeton High School.

Tickets may still be obtained from cast members, PHS students, through the high school office (tel. 1450) and at the box office.

Mrs. Wilma Harris has directed a cast which centers on a Norwegian family living in San Francisco around 1910. Members include Karen Petersen (as Mama), Steven Ward (Papa), Rita Ferguson (Katrina), Sarah Mulligan (Christine), Ann Kenarney (Dagmar), Morgan Holman (Nels), Ewald Ufert (Uncle Chris), Jonathan Jay (Mr. Hyde), John Regan (Mr. Thorkelson).

Also, Janet Thorson, Carol Anderson, Mildred Church, Campbell McCluskey, Raymond Ridgeway, David Jurji, Anita Smith, Elsa Mueller, Jewell Kennedy, Betty Davidson, Jeannie Stratton, Nancy Yeoman and Benjamin McGuire.

Technical leadership includes: tickets, Sally Reaser, chairman, Kendal Dodge, and Miss Dorothy de Chiara and Fred Coffman, faculty; properties, Heidi Vermilya and Miss Dorothy Gaskell; costumes, the home economics department; stage construction, Thomas Artia and Alfred Seitz of the faculty; electrical, Anthony Pinelli and Richard Wood of the faculty; make-up, the Make-Up Club, Miss Edith Margerum.

Miss Fine's Production. Members of the dramatic club at Miss Fine's School and Princeton undergraduates will perform "The Enchanted" by Jean Giraudoux this Friday and Saturday, December 2 and 3, at 8:30 p.m., in the Miss Fine's auditorium.

M. Giraudoux, the outstanding contemporary French playwright, is known in this country for his "Madwoman of Chaillot," "Ondine" and the current "Tiger at the Gates." "The Enchanted" is the story of a young girl who moves from a dream world to one of reality.

Margi Pascu, president of the MFS dramatic club, will be seen in the central role. Other major parts will be taken by Bettina Burbidge, Suzy Scarff, Beth MacNeil and Eugenie Rudd, while seven Princeton University students will be seen in the male roles.

The cast also includes Kinsa Turnbull, Ann Lea, Peggy Dodson, Grace Morton, Anne Prather, Carol Harris, Hester Delafield, Rosalind Webster, Hobart Alsop, Charlotte Cook, Faith Wing, Ann Kinzel, Mary Strunsky and Camilla Turnbull.

A. Munroe Wade, well-known on the Princeton theatrical scene, has directed the production. Backstage assignments have been filled by Betsy Thomas, stage manager; Kinsa Turnbull, assistant to the directors; Rosalind Webster, scenery; Marina Turkevich, lighting; Susan Smith, properties; Rosemarie Rubino and Sally Sikes, tickets and program; Lucille Stafford, costumes; Deborah Smith, makeup, and Patricia Henderson and Nancy Hudler, publicity.

The set has been designed by Pamela Thompson. In addition to background music by Frank Lewin, Grace Morton and Kinsa Turnbull have written incidental music for the production. The poster contest was won by Gail Andrews and Jennifer Dunning.

auto of Robert J. Ceraso, 333 Ewing Street. The injured man, with a compound fracture of the left leg and forehead lacerations, was expected to remain in Princeton Hospital for another five weeks.

According to Township police in charge of the investigation, Mr. Dennen stopped his car in his travel lane on Kingston Road at 2:45 a. m. one morning last week and failed to leave his lights on. Apparently, they said, he got out of his car to hail down Mr. Ceraso, who was heading home after finishing his bartending duties at the King's Inn. The bartender told officers he did not see Mr. Dennen's parked vehicle until the last moment, then swerved to the left to miss it but grazed it before hitting the victim.

Wife-Beater Fined. Found guilty of malicious mischief and a pair of simple assaults, Joseph Lawson, 421 Alexander Street, was fined $30 by Township Magistrate Louis R. Gerber in a special court session last Friday. The defendant spent one night in Borough jail, unable to post $150 bail, before paying his fine and earning freedom.

According to John Seeley, investigating officer, Lawson broke into the home of his estranged wife, Mrs. Mildred Lawson, 211 Birch Avenue, by knocking the hinges off the front door. Then, he beat his wife about the face and body, necessitating hospital treatment, and pushed his mother-in-law, Mrs. Marie Miller, who was in the house with her daughter,

An Impractical Joke. Harassed and unamused, Mrs. William Bradley, 289 Western Way, called Township police one afternoon this past week to report that an

Chest Record

The Princeton Community Chest this week reported again a record high in contributions, totalling $128,257, but it is still short by a little over 4% of its $134,715 goal.

Because of the short margin between the current figure and success in the appeal to support ten of Princeton's agencies, drive chairman Lawrence E. Benson said the campaign would be extended, with a number of donors still to be seen. Mr. Benson paid tribute to the widespread support the Chest has received, from individuals and business firms.

unknown person was having laughs at her expense. Taxis from four different cab companies, none of them summoned, had appeared at the Bradley home within a period of 10 minutes.

While officers were busy checking on information supplied by the cab companies—that "a young boy" called to order the taxis—Mrs. Bradley received $4 worth of roses C.O.D. from a Princeton florist. Investigation to determine who had ordered the flowers, since the recipient had not, resulted in the information that "a young girl made the call."

Officer Norman Servis, handling Mrs. Bradley's complaints, said he had "a few possible suspects" under study. The police are on guard against further calls from the impractical jokers, he added.

don this Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 in the Hurlingham Church House. Proceeds will go into a special fund for activities at the new Montgomery Township School.

Frank Critchlow is the director, while Henry DeVore is production manager. Cast members include Sylvia Spino, Louis Kuhlman, Ann Marie Cotter, George Klaus, George Olsen, Johnson Moore, Amelia Betchold, Fanny DeCanto, Lillian Sapabella and Lois DeVore.

"Happy Is the Bride!" is novel in that it begins in an empty room and ends in an empty room. A clothes model and her prospective spouse are to be married within a week, with no problems except for the future in-laws. The play includes laughs, romance and even a gun-totin' moll.

THE PLAYHOUSE

The Desperate Hours (Nov. 30, Dec. 1-3) is an exceptionally well-made melodrama, improved on the stage version. Three escaped convicts, headed by Humphrey Bogart, take refuge in the middle class home of Frederic March and Martha Scott. The suspense is extremely well built by director William Wyler. Also with Arthur Kennedy, Dewey Martin, Gig Young and Mary Murphy.

Quentin Durward (Dec. 4-6) is a bit better than the typical Hollywood idea of a medieval romance. Based loosely on Sir Walter Scott's novel and even more loosely on history, the film offers intrigue, cliff-hanging action and romance, all in CinemaScope and color. Robert Taylor plays the impoverished Scottish knight who becomes entangled in the affairs of France, as well as heroine Kay Kendall. Robert Morley appears as King Louis XI, who united France.

Rebel Without a Cause (Dec. 7-10) is a stirring and significant documentary of the psychological struggle of youth with an unfriendly environment and parents who cannot understand its problems. The theme is presented movingly and effectively, though a bit too black and white. The performance by the late James Dean is stunning, and other good performers are Natalie Wood and Sal Mineo. In CinemaScope and color.

THE GARDEN

Holiday for Henrietta (Nov. 28-30, Dec. 7) is a satirical comedy done in the witty French vein. Dany Robin, Hildegarde Neff and Michael Auclair are the stars. In French with English subtitles.

A Man Alone (Dec. 2-3) is a regular western with the asset of good acting by Ray Milland. He's an outlaw who eventually helps the sheriff get the town badman. Ward Bond appears with the star and Mary Murphy is his daughter. In color.

The Divided Heart (Dec. 5-8) is a marvelous documentary of the heart-tearing problem of deciding whether a war-battered child should go back to his foster mother or remain with his foster mother. Beautifully made by the British featuring exceptional European performers. A must. For news of a benefit performance Monday evening at 8:30, see Topics of the Town.

LIFE BEGINS AT 90: Mr. and Mrs. David Whitney Smith ("one of the rich Whitney's married my aunt"), who will observe their 70th wedding anniversary Saturday, look fondly at each other in their Princeton home. Both are wearing yellow roses, "just like the ones he gave me the day we were married." For more about the remarkable Smiths, see below. (Richards Photo)

An All-Too-Rare Event. "We've seen Princeton grow," David Whitney Smith remarked this week, and his wife, Cora, concurred by echoing his words, "Yes, we've surely seen Princeton grow." It was a significant week for them to be making such an observation, for, on Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Smith—still happily alert and full of life—will mark their 70th wedding anniversary.

Quite appropriately, Mr. Smith was asked what anniversary it will be, gift-wise, and what he planned to give his bride as a present. "I don't really know," he admitted, "it isn't in the books. I guess we won't do any celebrating because my wife has been laid up for six weeks with a bad leg and is only beginning to feel better now. Anyhow, they threw a big affair for us on our 50th, you know. Maybe I'll just save up for our 75th. That's diamonds—it's in the books."

The Smiths were married in the small town of Raeville, "over near Flemington," where they were next-door neighbors, schoolmates and childhood sweethearts. "We were always in love," Mrs. Smith said simply, recalling the start of an all-too-rare romance. As a matter of fact, even the ceremony was out of the ordinary—it was a double wedding, with a sister of Mrs. Smith in the role of the other bride.

Mrs. Smith summed up the marital success enjoyed by her and her husband with some solid philosophy: "The only thing I think is to give and take. No couples agree on everything. We've always gotten along very well by helping each other. The only way to do is to forget a lot of things that don't please you."

Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. James F. Smith, 12 Vandevanter Avenue, commenting on the permanent match, added a light touch: "After all, they weren't married in Hollywood."

Always a Good Appetite. Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who live around the corner from their son and his wife, at 7 Park Place, credited hearty heritages on both sides as the reason for their reasonable state of well-being with No. 70 approaching. Mr. Smith, after surviving a serious case of typhoid fever 75 years ago and finding that he usually felt good because he "always had a good appetite," will be 91 next month. Mrs. Smith, who never shared her husband's taste but seldom objected to him satisfying that appetite with larger beer, will be 90 next April.

Included in the hearty clan (Mr. Smith was one of 10 children, Mrs. Smith was one of four) are son James, now a young 69, and his wife of Princeton, plus a grand-daughter (whose husband is Philip S. Otten, a 1935 graduate of Princeton University) and three great-grandchildren, all of Canton, Ohio. Mr. Smith noted, incidentally, that his daughter-in-law's father, 92-year-old Francis Rorer, representing the hearty side of a related family, resides "up the street" at 41 Vandevanter.

The elder Smiths came to Princeton from Raeville by train in 1888, "right after the big blizzard," when the town was "a whole lot different." There were horse races on Nassau Street, only 400 or so students at the University and only a few buildings, Mr. Smith recalled. "And right outside here, where Vandevanter runs," Mrs. Smith contributed, "there was nothing but cornfields, with a big skating pond next to them—that's how Spring Street got its name."

Arriving with "nothing," Mr. Smith became a painter and paper-hanger, a business with which he was associated almost 60 years at two shops on John Street, first as an apprentice and then as full-fledged owner. Five years after reaching town, he owned his own home, "a big double house on Edwards Place," and he still owns two big houses, including the Smiths' present home, which is "far too large for two—it's got seven bedrooms." By 1910, he was driving one of Princeton's first automobiles.

Confessing that he is commencing to feel his years in his legs quite a bit, Mr. Smith said he was delighted to take care of his wife during her recent illness, attributed to nervous exhaustion. "She doctored me when I had typhoid and many other times," he noted, "so it was my turn to cook and look after her."

"Our wonderful son still drives us regularly to church suppers in Raeville—the best in the world," Mrs. Smith explained, with a smile. "We don't have television," her husband added, "because I'm already blind in one eye. But Cora reads everything to me and I tell her what they're saying over the radio, as she's partially deaf." Mrs. Smith doesn't care much about baseball results, though Mr. Smith, a rabid Brooklyn rooster, rarely misses a game broadcast.

Still sharp-minded and appreciative of new ideas, the Smiths live up to their own philosophy of marriage by giving and taking, and also by debating the issues of the day, particularly "today's overdose of red tape" and politics. "I believe I converted her to the GOP," Mr. Smith asserted. "No, sir," his wife countered, "I was very fond of Cleveland and Wilson, but I couldn't stand the Democrats after them."

Clark to speak at Benefit, Judge William Clark, Incarcer Chief Justice of the United States Court of Appeals of the Allied High Commission in Germany, will speak at the premiere performance of the English film "The Divided Heart," to be held at the Garden Theatre Monday at 8:30 p.m. The showing of the picture is being sponsored by the newly-chartered Kiwanis Club of Princeton for the benefit of its fund for the assistance of underprivileged children.

Based on an actual life situation, the film concerns the tragedy of a small Yugoslavian boy torn between the love of two mothers—the woman who bore him and the Bavarian woman who adopted him from a home for displaced children and raised him. The Michael Balcon production was written by Jack Whittingham and directed by Charles Crichton.

The case, both in real life and in the film story, was decided by the United States Court of the Allied High Commission in Germany after much careful consideration. Judge Clark will discuss the actual custody case as it appeared before his court for adjudication.

Tickets for the performance are now on sale at $1.50 each. They may be purchased from any member of the Kiwanis Club or at Hinkson's, the Princeton University Store, Prince Chevrolet Co., Center Stationers, Garden Theatre, Princeton Playhouse, Jigger Shop in Lawrenceville or Doollittle and Allen in Trenton.

Zoning Hearing Tuesday. The proposed new zoning ordinance and subdivision regulations for Princeton Township will be up for a public hearing before the Township Committee this Tuesday in Township Hall.

The hearing is scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m., since the law requires that on "second reading" the ordinance be read aloud in its entirety. Reading the document is expected to take about an hour, followed by public and official discussion of the new code.

Incidental Township intelligence: Occupation of new offices at the addition to Township Hall has meant a new telephone number for Clerk Joseph Nial. He can be reached by calling 5749, while the former number 3106 is now used only by the police department.

Shopping Center Xmas Plans. A three-day program will launch Christmas at the Princeton Shopping Center, starting with a community caroling this Thursday, beginning at 7 p. m.

The Columbus Boychoir under the direction of Paul Zesler will sing a group of selections and then lead the singing of carols. Steven Frohlich of Harriet Drive, Princeton's representative on "The $64,000 Question" will speak on what Christmas means to him, while Township Committeeman Ralph S. Mason will also be heard briefly.

Thursday's observance will culminate with the lighting of two towering 40-foot Christmas trees, while Santa Claus is expected to appear on the rooftop of the huge structure, on a sled drawn by eight reindeer, chief among them Rudolph.

At noon on Friday, "Santa's Zoo" will open for the inspection of young, and will include a considerable number of rarely-seen live animals. Santa, along with the exhibit, will remain on the center mall until Christmas. A pygmy donkey, baby llama, Sika deer fawns, mountain sheep and Karakul lambs are included.

The final event of the weekend will be a Santa Parade, starting Saturday at 10:30 a. m. from Palmer Square and proceeding out to the Shopping Center via Nassau and Harrison. Santa Claus will be installed in his igloo, holding hours daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Saturdays from 10 to 6.

Dave Irvin, the arctic explorer, will escort Santa Claus in the parade, being drawn in an authentic dog sled, mounted on wheels and drawn by a team of Siberian huskies. Mr. Irvin will remain Saturday afternoon to answer questions about the far North, having traveled some 3,000 miles alone across the Arctic.

NEGATIVE DEVELOPMENT: Asked if they would run again for the Presidency, presuming they were in Ike's shoes, Walter B. Schare (left) and a University Store customer, Thurlow J. Chamberlin, answered emphatically in the negative. For their complete responses to Question of the Week, plus opinions from six others, see below. (Richards Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: If you were in President Eisenhower's shoes, would you run again?

Location: Princeton University Campus.

Walter R. Schare, 182 Washington Road, department head at University Store; No. The President and I are of the same alma mater, in that both of us have recovered from a coronary attack. Being fully recovered myself and knowing what it takes, I would not want to see the President assume for another four years the burdens of the world. Rather, I would have him serve his successor as a specialist and advisor. But, if he should choose to run again, I would very strenuously urge that the Vice-Presidential candidate be a highly qualified individual. Incidentally, speaking of the Presidency, I broadcast the first election results ever carried over radio in the United States. As our station (New York City) closed for the evening, I told people Hughes had won. When they woke up the next morning, Wilson was "in."

Mrs. Anne Nies, 7 Deerpath, secretary: Yes, I think I would. If I was the sort of person I believe I ought to be, I think I'd put the good of the country ahead of my own personal welfare. You know, you can carry on a job and still live a sedentary life physically. However, if Mr. Eisenhower runs again, the Democrats will make an awful issue of his health and lick him.

Benjamin Dean, Colonial Lake-Land, Lawrence Township, University policeman: No, I wouldn't. The job has almost killed him now—another attack would surely finish him. If he does run, people would vote for him because I don't think he'd last the term out. And I voted for him last time. He's done a wonderful job, but running again is too big a gamble.

Charles T. Zink, Atlanta, Princeton University student: That's a complex question. The Republicans won't win unless they have Eisenhower, and I don't think anyone wants the Democrats in after the fine work the Republicans have done. I'm a Southern Democrat and I hope the Republicans keep on winning until the real Democrats—the Southern Democrats—are back in the saddle. I don't think Ike will run—I wouldn't, if I were in his shoes—for his own good, not the country's.

Alan W. Richards, 817 Princeton-Kingston Road, professional photographer: No, I believe that President Eisenhower has served his nation magnificently, been as a soldier and statesman. He deserves retirement on his Gettysburg farm for full enjoyment of the home he has never had in the past. The burdens of the office of President are hard enough for a N. J. Likes Ike, If Ike O.K.

Results of a New Jersey Poll survey just completed indicate that a majority of New Jersey's voters now would vote for President Eisenhower for a second term, despite what they know about his health—if his doctors give their okay.

Of all the citizens questioned, 56 percent said they would go with Ike if his physicians give him the green light and the President decides to seek reelection. About three in 10 admitted they would not. Some 15 percent were undecided.

The poll, conducted by the Princeton Research Service, found that three out of every five Independents—those who would hold the balance of power next year—would vote for Mr. Eisenhower. One out of every four Democrats questioned would vote for him, along with five out of every six Republicans.

robust man and, anyhow, President Eisenhower, as long as he lives, will always be of great help to the country, whether President or Presidential adviser.

Miss Mary Bertagni, 19 University Place, secretary: No—I like ought to relax. He'll live longer that way. Let's let someone else take on the headaches for a while. He's got a beautiful farm and he might as well stay right there.

Thurlow J. Chamberlin, Kingston, foreman at Princeton Nurseries: As much as I'd like him to—no. There's a lot more strain connected with the Presidency than anyone can guess. If President Eisenhower's condition warranted it, I'd say, "Yes." But I'm not sure it does, and I don't think his physicians feel it does. I sure would like to see him there, but he's too good a man to jeopardize his health any more.

Albert E. Simpson, 13 McLean Street, taxi driver: No—I really don't think he's able. As far as I'm concerned, one heart attack is enough. With or without that attack, I personally believe the job is too much strain and responsibility for any one individual. If I were in his shoes, I'd jump right out of them as long as they were moving toward the Presidency.

TEAM EFFORT PAYS OFF: Dr. Allan J. Stolow, whose services are provided by the State Department of Health, and Miss Eva Darlington, registered nurse representing the Princeton Tuberculosis League and Princeton Board of Health, conduct November clinic and confirm fact that unidentified Princetonian has a serious but conquerable case of TB. Monthly clinic sessions are benefited largely by the sale of Christmas Seals, now in progress here. For more about the services Christmas Seals help make possible, see Topics of the Town. (Richards Photo)

What Do Christmas Seals Buy?
Inasmuch as the Princeton Tuberculosis League is in the process of conducting its first sale of Christmas Seals in 17 years, residents of the area quite logically are asking league members to tell them what funds from the sale buy. The league volunteers say they are happy to be asked this important question, for they want people to understand exactly how the continuing war against TB is being waged.

Generally, according to the league leaders, Christmas Seal money is used to educate the public regarding TB, to maintain close cooperation between the local tuberculosis association and other community agencies, to promote or subsidize medical research in the field of TB, to provide emergency or temporary relief for TB patients, to pay the salary of a well-trained supervisor, and to encourage support from public funds of services and facilities for case-finding, diagnosis, treatment and rehabilitation of the tuberculous.

Miss Eva Darlington, a registered nurse who has devoted years of competent service to the Princeton Tuberculosis League, is the "well-trained supervisor" whose salary is paid largely out of Christmas Seal funds. Her value as a first lieutenant in the battle against TB cannot be overemphasized, league board members proclaim, and, although it is difficult to describe her efforts in words, statistics tell a big part of the story.

Seals for Sale

Although money for Christmas Seals is pouring into campaign headquarters at a better-than-expected rate, Mrs. Shove Palmer, sale chairman, this week reminded prospective purchasers that there are plenty of Christmas Seals available at the Borough Health Department in Borough Hall. She pointed out that many addresses are not up to date and many new people are moving into Princeton each week, so she urged these persons to call the Health Department with their orders.

In addition to PTL's annual survey (3,352 X-rays in 1954), which Miss Darlington helps conduct one week each fall, she gives weekly X-rays by appointment every Friday, participates in a monthly diagnostic chest service at Princeton Hospital, visits numerous sufferers in behalf of PTL and tries constantly to dig out from under a pile of paper work on her desk at the Princeton Board of Health office.

These figures give an idea of the nurse's labor of love last year: 10 monthly clinics, 128 examinations at these clinics, 135 weekly X-rays, 10 patch tests at the clinics, 575 patch tests at Princeton schools, 17 observation cases, four children's cases (healed), two home-treatment cases, four admissions to Donnelly Hospital, three admissions to a preventorium, nine observation patients discharged from three regional hospitals and 473 TB visits.

Diagnostic Clinics Important. One of the most gratifying features of Miss Darlington's routine—for those she helps as well as for her—is the diagnostic chest service offered the third Tuesday of each month at the clinics. Held at Princeton Hospital, which contributes X-rays at cost, these clinics are supported by the Princeton Board of Health and the Princeton Tuberculosis League (thanks to Seals sale funds), with medical service at the physician level provided by the State Board of Health.

The clinics accomplish "follow-up" work as soon as the results of PTL's annual survey or Miss Darlington's weekly X-rays are known. All persons who show any pathology from the X-rays, not necessarily TB, receive advisory cards urging them to visit their family doctor. The physician may recommend an appearance at the next clinic for an opinion on corrective steps or he may choose some other course of action. If the Princetonians with signs of illness do not see a doctor, they are contacted directly by Miss Darlington and urged to attend a clinic session.

PTL board members, ever watchful regarding the vital part played by the diagnostic chest service in maintaining control of Princeton's overall health problem, feel grateful the monthly clinics are staffed by Dr. Allan J. Stolow, chest clinician for the State Board of Health. He devotes a full day's work to the Princeton community each month, as he also does at hospitals throughout Mercer, Monmouth, Essex, Warren and Sussex counties.

Dr. Stolow, who is thoroughly backgrounded in the specialized field of TB, works hand-in-glove with Miss Darlington and, together, they manage to keep tuberculosis under their thumbs in the Princeton area. In addition to his State Department of Health position, the doctor is senior attending chest physician at Somerset Hospital in Somerville and president of the Somerset County Tuberculosis and Health Association. At one time, he was senior physician at the State Sanatorium for Chest Diseases at Glen Gardner.

Get Your Hair Fixed, Too. A "try before you buy" Elizabeth Arden make-up bar and a serve-yourself-for-free tea and coffee counter will be two innovations of Artistic Hairdressers when that firm moves from 352 Nassau Street to new quarters at 38 Witherspoon Street next Monday. And, by early February—probably in time for Valentine-sending, there will be desk space for customers to dash off notes.

Mrs. Margaret Jeffries, Artistic's proprietor, announced this week that the interior of the new beauty salon will feature pink and black colors, with touches of aqua blue. Italian marble will be used extensively to decorate the shop, she said.

While the tea and coffee counter will require self-service, the make-up bar will be staffed by Mrs. Joan Garbarini, who recently completed a special Elizabeth Arden course in New York City.

Expect Record Mail. Using the steady increase in the flow of Christmas cards and packages during the past week as his gauge, Postmaster Charles Murray predicted that more Yule mail will be handled in 1955 by Princeton postal employees than ever before. A year ago, a new record was set—1,134,235 cancellations for the month of December, not counting an estimated 300,000 pieces of metered mail—but that mark is expected to go by the boards in a hurry.

Mr. Murray reiterated an earlier plea for Princetonians to cooperate with his "Mail Early for Christmas" campaign, stressing that packages addressed to people outside of New Jersey should be mailed before next Monday and those for nearby points before December 10. Three simple rules should be followed, he said, to make certain that gifts are delivered by Christmas Day: wrap them securely, address them correctly and mail them early.

As for Christmas cards, the postmaster urged that those headed for out-of-town destinations be dispatched by December 10 and those for local delivery by at least a week before December 25.

CAP Observing Anniversary. The Civil Air Patrol will celebrate its 14th anniversary in the coming week and the Mercer Cadet Squadron of the CAP has launched a recruiting drive for boys and girls 15 to 18 interested in joining the affiliate of the U.S. Air Force.

The Mercer Squadron drills Monday evenings at 7:30 at the Princeton ROTC Armory. Subjects included in the program are flight orientation, aerial navigation, airplane study, Morse code and vocational drill. There is no flight instruction, but membership in the Cadet program assures preference in Air Force activities, including Air Academy appointments, Air ROTC and enlistment.

As recently as last week, Cadets assisted in a mission down from Rocky Hill airport, in which two downed jet pilots were found by the CAP. John Laird, now a Purdue freshman, has just received his pilot's license after serving as the Mercer cadet commander.

Members of the unit from Princeton High School include Ellen Reed, John Selah, Ronald Poinsett, Sandra Huizing, Kenneth Boggs and Nancy Grove. The senior commandant is CAP 1st Lt. Oscar Neumer, assisted by his wife 2nd Lt. Irene Neumer. Recruiting information may be obtained by calling Twin Oaks 6-0523 or LYric 9-9655.

Herold Chosen Institute Director. Edward W. Herold, Director of the RCA's Electronic Research Laboratory in Princeton, has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Institute of Radio Engineers for the term 1955-58. He is a member of the Princeton Section of the Institute.

A native of New York City, Mr. Herold was chairman of the Princeton Section in 1949 and has been an active member for many years. He has been with the Radio Corporation of America since 1930.

Housing Development Expanded. Approximately 30 additional homes on an additional ten acres will be added to Cantorbury Estates, the new Hamilton Township development of 75-room split level back-to-front ranch homes selling at $11,290.

Edward Cantor, the developer, noted a high demand for good lower-cost housing in this area in announcing the expansion of—Continued on Page 22

Steam-engines that really make steam begin at $7.95 and go up from there. We found them at Lawrenceville Hardware and Tiger Auto.

Stuff presents a real typewriter for children at $29.50. It has been pared down to the rudiments: upper case only, and no punctuation except a period. This means it's easy to operate and has a simple mechanism that can't fall apart easily. Ribbons available as needed.

A present of the first magnitude is the Mt. Palomar telescope ($9.95) through which you can see the craters of the moon (in case you are interested in real estate) and various other heavenly sights. The Hobby Shop at 12 Witherspoon has it, and so does Tiger. At Urken's, we found the eight-ranger; binoculars and a telescope that opens up to three feet.

Dope. If you're unsure about what to give a child, you can always give him—or her—a model to put together. The Hobby Center says that a child from the age of six can make some models, and the age range is infinity. Standard models are available at Bamberger's, Urken's, Tiger, Hobby Center, Pastimes, Book Mart, Lawrenceville Hardware and the Nassau Paint Store.

Nassau Paint at 126 Nassau carries the Monogram hobby kits: three models, dope glue, a racer, car and speedboat. For $6.95 you can buy a blue flight suit with seven models (planes, boats and cars) and the glue to assemble them. A flight bag, scotch tape, $4.19, and it holds four twin-engine aircraft. The Hobby Center has these sets, too.

A sweeping model of the S. S. United States costs $9.95 for $129 (smaller scale) at Nassau Paint. The Hobby Center offers the "Sea Witch," a 500-piece sailing vessel for $9.95.

And of course, all the new cars:

Hand on the Throttle

Small relatives of Casey Jones may ride around their backyards this year on a train called the "Yardbird," which you may have seen in "Little" magazine. The Yardbird consists of a chain-drive car that runs on about 15 feet of track mounted on real little railroad ties.

The manufacturer assures all buyers that by next year, or hopefully, by summertime, he will have an open stock of track, switches, and additional cars. Right now, you can buy track and car for $34.95 at Lawrenceville Hardware (Main Street) or Pastimes, Washington Crossing.

We asked the demonstrator how big a child could be and still fit into the little train. A soft and wistful light came into his eye, and he said, "Well, I rode it myself quite a bit at the Toy Fair."

Buick, Cadillac, Ford, Pontiac. Both Nassau Paint and the Hobby Center specialize in these. Pastimes has a Jaguar model for $10.95, and so does Bamberger's.

Nassau Paint has, for $1, a set of tubes with a color pellet inside each one. You pour cold water into the tube, melt the pellet, and then paint numbered pictures with the color that comes out of the brush at the end of the tube. Tiger and Urken suggest the Winky Dink Magic Page (98c)—a stuffed toy with a plastic face that you can draw in yourself.

Bibliography. Browse at the Princeton Book Mart, Bamberger's, Pastimes, Stuff, or the Witherspoon Art and Book Shop on Spring Street for children's books, new and old. Dr. Seuss has a new one, "On Beyond Zebra," and Ludwig Bemmelstein offers "Parley." Margaret Wise Brown's adaptation of "Brer Rabbit" looks worthwhile, and so does the sequel to "The Borrowers" of 1953. Landmark books have new ones on the Foreign Legion, Xenophon, and the battle for Guadalcanal. An "Illustrated Treasury of Children's Literature" ($4.95) has everything from Mille, Aesop and Lear, to "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

For Christmas giving, many parents will choose Florence Fitch's new book, "The Child Jesus," latest addition to her group of children's religious books. For English and unusual foreign children's books, try the Witherspoon Art and Book Shop, where the Penguin "Puffins" are in full supply, along with the other English contributions.

Card for Boys. This is the first year that Lionel electric trains have not come under fair trade rules, so that prices will vary considerably from store to store. Tiger Auto, for example, has Lionel from $13.97 up, American Flyer from $16.19, and Marx from $10.95. Pastimes offers 20% off on Lionel, Flyer and accessories.

Other electric train stores include Urken's (Lionel); Bamberger's (Lionel, Flyer); Zinder's (Lionel and Flyer); Lawrenceville Hardware (Lionel, Flyer and H O), and Hobby Center (H O). The H O, for those who are not aficionados, is a train that you can build yourself. It's smaller than the others, but just as complete. There are ready-built sets, too, if you prefer.

We spent a considerable amount of time with a thing called a Sand-Loader that we found at Urken's Lawrenceville and Pastimes. $15.95. Tested and operated it many times. It consists of a chrome frame about 18 inches high. Mounted on top of the frame, like a train on its track, is a sand hopper. You turn a small wheel and the chain-driven leader roll along the track. Reverse your turn, and it rolls backward. At any point you choose, the loader will stop and dump its load to a truck waiting below.

Tonka toys appear this year in sets (Urken, Lawrenceville, Book Mart, Pastimes). A road-builder set from the Tonka assembly line includes a grader, truck, dump truck and shovel for $14.95.

Another, more inexpensive set is assembled by Structo (whether de-Structo or con-Structo depends on your child). Here you have a builder's supply fleet: dump, stake and lumber trucks for $2.98. —Continued on Page 17

Structo also makes a set of four different transports with a single cab, and four small sedans for the auto transport. The set is $17.95.

Structo's "live action" trucks at Lawrenceville are in a pleasant $3.98-$2.98 bracket. Allen's (145 Nassau) has a $6.98 Structo steam shovel atop a truck. For a larger load of pay dirt, ($18.95) you can have Model's pay loader, a truck with little buckets that travel up a conveyor belt. Tested that one, too—several times.

The Buddy-L line at Lawrenceville has a mobile power digger, and a tow-truck that you assemble yourself. The chassis is there, but the wheels and crane have to be installed. A Fix-It outfit at Urke's has tow-truck and disabled sedan.

At Zinder's, there is a metal shovel truck by Hubley, with swiveling shovel, turning crank and unloading bucket. For $1.98.

For a boy with circuits in his system, Urken has a kit for $4.98 that will build over 25 electrical devices, such as a bike horn and the like. It contains batteries, clips, bolts, all neatly stocked in little jars.

Potential detectives will want a Dragnet set of some kind—there are many to be had. Zinder's has a police holster set for $2.98. Urke's offers the Dragnet remote control talking police car, and there is a Dragnet game that we saw first at Bamberger's and later at Lawrenceville and Pastimes.

For those with thespian leanings, there is a Gladiator set (sword and shield) for $5.95 at Lawrenceville, a Davy Crockett hunting costume ($7.98) at Zinder's, and also at Zinder's, a rather chilling sort of toy, it seemed to us, as M. P. outfit with two white helmets, white Sam Browne belt and white guns. Arm-bands, too.

Sporting goods for boys are carried by almost every store that carries toys, and it's rather difficult to single out, say, a basketball or an archery set as a Christmas speciality. Tiger Auto has bows and arrows from $1, and a large sporting-goods department to carry on from there.

Pastimes has punching bags and boxing gloves. Zinder's has the Hubley sportsman rifle that shoots caps and repeats itself ($3.98). Urke's offers a fencing set for two, with plastic helmets, rubber-tipped foils and instructions.

Carol for Girls. Dolls this year are much the same as before, with Ginette, Ginny's baby sister, the youngest arrival in the family. She has moved in to Pastimes, Urke's, Zinder's, Bamberger's and Wald's Gift Shop, 13 Palmer Square West. She has a layette and furniture that just fits.

There is another new doll this year, the grown-up Madame Alexander doll at Pastimes. She wears high heels, has a "real" ring on one of her flexible fingers, and a bosom, if you please. At $16.95 and $19.95, she makes a gift for the girl who thinks she has outgrown dolls, but still yearns for one secretly. Pastimes also has a miniature Queen Elizabeth for $7.95. A new baby doll (Zinder's and Tiger) is called So-Wee, which is self-explanatory.

Ginny herself has more clothes than ever, if such is possible. We found a Crockett coon-skin hat for her at Pastimes, and there is a whole Davy outfit, if you want to go all the way. Pastimes also has Ginny furniture, to scale. Allen's has the Nitey-Nite doll in its sleepers, and a kneeling walking doll for $7.98.

Furniture for this large and growing family might include the steel crib with plastic mattress for $8.98 at Bamberger's, the doll highchair at $2.98 from same store, or any of the doll beds, cradles, cribs, strollers and carriages at Allen's, Urke's and Zinder's also have a collection of doll equipment.

Pastimes has added a "mahogany" vanity to its canopy bed collection. A white organdy skirt goes around the vanity's edge. ($12.50).

For housekeepers, there is a real Hoover vacuum for $8.95 at Pastimes. It's done up in red and white cellophane, just like the one daddy is giving mother, and it runs on batteries. The Zimvac is similar, but it has two attachments, and it plugs into the wall. (14.95) Useful for a small apartment!

Pastimes' "Bleador" for $3.95 will make a quick bowl of those soups in the Campbell or Heinz kitchen kits. Here also is an electric bakerette for $5.95—a small Dutch oven or grill that will really cook.

Lawrenceville, Urken, and Zinder's offer the Revere copper ware miniatures and the Mirro or Wear-Ever aluminum cooking and serving sets. Stuff and Nonsense has an aluminum set from Italy, heavy as cast iron, and almost large enough to serve adults: teakettle, pans, and so on.

The Heinz cupboard and the Campbell set — almost identical are at Urke's and Pastimes; Pillsbury's pie-crust set ($2.98), a Jella dessert set and a cake mix set ($2.98) are in the Zinder and Urken pantries.

Zinder stocks a Betty Crocker Jr. baking set with 12 baking needs; with this a girl can make cakes, cookies, pie, biscuits and brownies for $4.98. Urke's offers a candy-making set that can be converted to frosting, and a Downy-Mix do-aunt kit.

Stuff and Nonsense has a little metal stove about 10 inches high

(not electric) with oven and hroiler doors that open, and utensils lined neatly at top and back. A teakettle, some two inches high, a roaster and a pair of pans are on the surface. At the back, is a rack with ladles, grater and mold, each about two or three inches. It's white, $3.95. A smaller stove, without the back, has a bonus: a plastic turkey in the oven.

For doll-houses, Stuff has extremely small German utensils: a half-inch teakettle, an iron, a minute fire-place set and so on for $1.25. German dolls provide a family for this doll-house. They are unbreakable and beakable and some of them have a little wardrobe for a change of clothes.

Doll-house furniture at Stuff is wooden, with doors that open and drawers that pull. It comes in a light wood, European modern in design, with a free-form coffee table in the living-room, just for style. There is a dining room set, too.

A tea-party calls for imported china. That's just what this set is — china, not pottery. It comes from Japan, and has six of everything, plus teapot, sugar and —Continued on Page 18

creamer, all in a pale green with flowers for an amazing $2.

To wear to the party, or anytime a girl feels like let's pretend, there are feathers, tulle and sequins from costume box ($12.50) at Stuff. This is a hat-box in pink stripes, and it holds 14 pieces:
crowns, masks, ribbons for hair and waist, a short tulle skirt, a laced peasant-style top, a fairy wand that can do double as a witch's stick, we should imagine, colored sash, fur headpiece, and a full ankle-length skirt. A booklet gives ideas, but what little girl needs a booklet for dress-up?

The Least Ones. The Princeton Book Mart has a Hickory-Dickory clock that you wind in order to see the mouse perform, and a toddler will probably drive you crazy with it before Christmas Day is over.

At Bomberger's we saw Holgate's Tasket-basket, and the callopie peg that has four different whistles. You pull it. Allen's, Stuff, Urken and Zinder's have Holgate, too.

Urken's offers a kiddy-car for $5.98 with bells in its wheels and a policeman's motorcycle design pointed on the side. At Urken's and also at Allen's, we saw the pull-toys for little walkers—Looky fire-truck, Katy Kackler and the rest.

Here's a safe pair of scissors for a toddler to use: a pair of electric ones at the Book Mart for $4.
Stuff has a little wooden ferris wheel with two dolls in each seat (attached). The wheel turns. The same dolls ride a see-saw and turn around in a curious game that you work by pulling and pushing the ends of the toy.

At Thorne's, 168 Nassau, they have the Bonnie bells, soft plastic ones that look like little drinking glasses. They come in five colors for 98¢ and Urken's has them, too.

Thorne also has a rubber-like vinyl train for very little children.
It's quite realistic—has a life like engine and three cars for $2.49.

Slinky is now a caterpillar. We found him at Urken's. There is the slinky dog, too.

Every store that we visited has stuffed animals, from the $1 lambs-wool rabbit at The Clothesline, 53 Palmer Square West, to the growling bear on wheels at Bambergers, all $89.90 of him.
Biggest bear east of the Yellowstone.

Pastimes has a puppy, and The Clothesline has a matching kitten, that you wind up by a twist of the tail. Put the puppy or the kitten down and watch him roll slowly over, $4.95 at both stores.

Your Turn. Games this year stem directly from television. Besides the Dragnet one, there's "What's My Line?" "Beat the Clock", "Qubla" and so on. Try Pastimes' huge game department, or Urken's, Zinder's, Tiger, Lawrenceville and Stuff, for almost any game you ever heard of.

Someone sly has slipped a roulette wheel ($3.19) in among the Mickey Mouse games at Bamberger's. Tiger has an indoor game called the Bongo board. ($9.95) mount a board that is in turn mounted on rollers and you try to balance on it. Want a Pogo stick? Stuff has one for about $6.

Music boxes at Stuff come from Germany, including a bank for $10 that plays for a coin. Little German figures and some ducks dance slowly around the top while it plays.

Rolling Stock. Buy a little wagon from Zinder's for $1.39, or a big B.M.C. tractor from Urken's for $32.95. Tiger carries B.M.C., too. These tractors are chain-driven, many with two speeds.

Pastimes and Lawrenceville

Current Toys

If it has a battery or a plug, and if you can communicate through it, it's a 1955 Christmas toy. There isn't a boy in town who will accept anything less than two microphones and a loud speaker or two, either to "send a signal half a mile" or just for the pleasure of hearing his amplified voice.

There's a radio station that sends and receives up to 2500 feet; a switchboard with dial, pushbuttons and receiver; intercom sets with two phones; a Dick Tracy wrist radio; a small loudspeaker and mike with search-light and signal button (this one is mobile). Some manufacturers refer to these toys as "electronic" but mostly they are powered by batteries or house current.

Ceiling price is about $9.98, the floor around $3.95. Stores that carry some of these (or even all of them) are: Bamberger's, Lawrenceville Hardware, Pastimes, Princeton Book Mart, Stuff and Nonsense, Tiger Auto, Urken's and Zinder's.

have the Snow-Coaster: a flying saucer thing that you sit on for a coast down hill. It's $4.95. We found a rarity at Pastimes: a little Irish mail for $16.95 that's sturdy enough for a big child.

Tricycles at Allen's, Bomberg-er's; bikes at Urken's from $29.95 up, at Tiger, too, and at Bamberger's from $25.99 to $71.50.

Bamberger's has a toy chest of sturdy wood with casters and a painted design that is suitable for boy or girl. It's $11.98. A circus-wagon chest is $3.98. One table in this store has a formica top ($9.98) and two chairs.

Allen's has table and chair sets, too, including some musical rockers. Stuff and Nonsense suggests wooden plaques for a nursery wall: Red Riding Hood, three musicians, and other nursery figures have been gaily painted on wood cut-outs about 14 inches high.
There are some angels, too, but they'll be along later.

FLIPPIN AND SUCCESSOR: Mike Bowman (74) this week was elected captain of Princeton's 1955 football team. The big (212-lb.) lineman, who played both tackle and guard this season, will replace the Tiger tailback and Poe Cup winner (see below). With them is Coach Charlie Caldwell. (Richards Photo)

Sports in Princeton

Winter Sports Forecasts. Princeton's basketball and hockey teams both figure to be in the thick of contention for Ivy League titles during the winter sports season opening this Saturday. The Tigers will defend the championship in basketball; in hockey, they'll have their sights set on a particularly strong Harvard team which won last winter, with Princeton and Brown tied for the runner-up spot.

Three games in eight days confront both Tiger outfits. Hofstra will be in Dillon Gym Saturday night at 8 for the first game of the basketball campaign, with the team traveling to Easton to play Lafayette Tuesday night and then entertaining Colgate here next Saturday, December 8.

Coach Dick Vaughan's hockey forces, deploying a sizeable number of Princeton residents, will play their annual alumni game Saturday afternoon at 2 in Baker Rink. Next weekend, Providence College will be here for a pair of contests—Friday night at 8 and again Saturday at 2.

Varsity Basketball

Dec. 3, Hofstra; 6, Lafayette, away; 10, Colgate; 16, Rutgers, away; 17, Temple, away; 27, Northwestern, away; 30, Butler, away; 31, Purdue, away; Jan. 6, *Brown; 7, *Dartmouth; 11, Fordham; 14, *Dartmouth, away; Feb. 1, Rutgers; 4, *Columbia, away; 10, *Harvard, away; 11, *Brown, away; 15, *Harvard; 18, Pennsylvania; 22, *Yale, away; 25, *Yale; 28, *Cornell, away; Mar. 3, *Cornell; 7, *Columbia; 10, *Pennsylvania, away.

Loss of three key members of last season's champions, including the player who took with him every Princeton scoring record in the sport, has created quite a problem for basketball coach Cappon Cappon. Bud Habebstad, who dropped in an even 500 points last season for a tremendous 20-percentage average and is the only player in Princeton history with a career total above 1,000, was the spark that fired the Tigers' late drive.

Varsity Hockey

*Ivy League Game.

They won seven of their last eight in the league, thumping Columbia in the title playoff by an unprecedented 8-6 margin. That night in New Brunswick, Habebstad threw in 28 points.

John Easton, always dependable and a tremendous asset under the boards, has also graduated and center Dick Batt, who came along beautifully under Cappon's fine coaching, is the third of last year's starters no longer available. It was a typical iron-man team, even the tall, thin, quick-to-tire Batt learning to go 35 minutes or more without relief.

John DeVoe, a polished 6-3 performer and this year's captain, will hold down one of the starting assignments, as will 6-4 Don Davidson. The latter came particularly fast in his first year, has a good eye for a set shot and yet can drive in fast for layups despite his lanky build. These two are the foundation on which Cappon is building the 1955 edition of his famous weave-type offense.

Tigers a Young Team. Another junior, 6-3 Ken MacKenzie, figures to have first call on one of the three vacancies left by the graduating trio. He was generally the first reserve to see action a year ago, and compiled the top shooting average from the floor with a mark of 57% in limited duty.

Two sophomores are the current pick for the other spots, making the Tiger quintet one of the youngest to represent Princeton in the past decade. Dave "Whitey" Fulcomer is a 6-6 center who has considerable potential ability but understandably needs considerable polish. Center is one of the toughest positions to play in college basketball, although widening of the foul lanes to 12 feet this season will make defensive assignments easier against teams using the pivot.

Fulcomer was a big factor in giving the Class of 1958 a 9-2 record last year as he hit 23 points to break by 27 the record

REPEATER: John DeVoe, this year's basketball captain, is a brother of Chuck DeVoe, whose team won the Ivy title in 1952.

Habebstad set as a freshman. On his development in his first year much of the team's success will hinge.

Sophomore Fred Perkins, an unusually mature basketball player for his age, is the fifth starter in the scheme of things. He has a good outside shot that will help break up the zone defense so many teams use against Princeton, and despite the fact that he's only 5-10 in a tall man's game, figures to be a major asset.

A stronger bench will be needed this season, Cappon feels, in view of the large amount of experience lost in just the graduation of the three seniors. Tom Dailey, a 6-5 junior, will spell Fulcomer at —Continued on Page 20 center, while other immediate replacements will include Wait Blandley, Bill Dandorth and Steve DeVoe, the latter a brother of the captain and like the other two, a junior. Ben Spinnell and Dick DeCesare, seniors, and sophomores Norm Kurtz and Chuck Wittman also figure to see action.

Columbia is generally being given the nod as the team to beat in the league, having gone to the wire a year ago and lost only lightly through graduation. After a long drought at Hanover, Dartmouth figures to get back into contention for the title this season, with Penn another possible winner.

Yale has a number of unusually good sophomores; Cornell and Harvard are probable second division tenants, with Brown again likely to wind up last. Princeton's degree of success is difficult to determine, but expectations are that the Tigers will give the leaders a battle all season long. Will DeVoe the only senior, however, chances are it will be difficult for them to repeat as champions—a trick turned in the Ivy League only once (by Columbia in 1947 and '48) in the last 15 years.

Local Boys Make Good. Princetonians will find their home town well represented on the varsity hockey squad this season. Already assigned a place on the first line as a forward, despite the fact that he is only a sophomore, is Harry Rulon-Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Summer Rulon-Miller of Newlin Road. Fast and a fine stick-handler, he'll be well worth watching in the years immediately ahead.

Mike Erdman, fifth hockey-playing son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles R. Erdman, Jr. of Boudnot Street, will hold down a defensive post, returning to action after missing much of last season with a fractured wrist. The squad also includes Doug Levick, 3d, whose parents lived on Rosedale Lane for many years before moving from Princeton; Ilugh Fairman, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Kenneth Fairman of Rosedale Lane; Jimmy Bonthron, son of William R. Bonthron of The Great Road; and Bob Koley, son of Mrs. John Pearce of Elm Road.

Captain George Scragg will center the first line, on which Rulon-Miller and junior Kim Townsend will be the forwards. The trio should develop quickly as a unit and will give the Tigers more speed and high-scoring potential than they have had since All-American Hank Eshfeldt's team gave Princeton its last hockey championship in 1952.

Three seniors, Charlie Pratt as center and Roger Boeckel and John Butsch on the wings, are the second line, while a third trio will be selected from Bevis Longstreth, Gordie Wilson and Pete Gillette, seniors, and Vic Hauser and Fred Reynolds, juniors. Seniors Matt Plum and Hugh Watts are the starters on defense, with Erdman and Dave Logan behind them and Levick and Dave Smith Vaughan's third pair for these posts.

Goalies inexperienced. The big problem is in the goal, where junior Robinson has only two years of experience. One was as a freshman, when he was converted to this position after playing defense at Deerfield, and the other last year, spent largely on the bench until senior Bill Van Alstyne was injured just before the season ended.

Robinson will have Sid Guberman, last year's freshman captain, as his reserve. Van Alstyne and George Hackl, the latter a stand-out captain, are the only two lost by graduation, but they will be particularly difficult to replace.

PHS "Green"—for Danger? Bemoaning the fact that his 1955-56 varsity basketball team will play a difficult 17-game schedule without benefit of depth or much experience, Princeton High Coach Tony Borzok predicted this week that his club may be hard-pressed to duplicate last season's 11-9 record. "They're 'green,'" he confided, "but, then again, maybe they'll develop fast and become a little dangerous after a couple of games."

On paper—since they've only been on the practice floor a week—the Little Tigers look fairly formidable. True, they have only three lettered returnees, but this—Continued on Page 21

ELECTRICITY—DOES SO MUCH—COSTS SO LITTLE

CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR PRINCETON: While Princeton motorists may feel the busy pre-holiday shopping period is no time for extensive street-digging at the central intersection of Nassau and Witherspoon, Public Service insists the job must be done now. The $5,000-plus project, which will continue for approximately three more weeks, represents enlargement of a master manhole to permit installation of new cables, badly needed to feed Nassau Street businesses in particular and the entire growing community in general. Originally scheduled for last summer, the digging had to be postponed then due to other emergency work and later because of the threat of serious traffic tie-ups on football Saturdays. Since the cables have not been replaced for 30-odd years, it's an important job. And, since many underground arteries criss-cross at the intersection, it's a slow, tedious task. (Richards Photo) trio has the makings of a winning combination. Included: Captain Lee Ammerman, 6-foot 4-inch center who hangs deep under the baskets and grabs more than his share of rebounds; Nick Kovalakides, 6-foot 2 inch guard who directs the attack and handles himself well on defense; and Marv Trotman, 5-foot 11-inch forward who scores often (last year's leader) and paces the PHS offense in dazzling style.

Elsewhere along the line, Coach Borzok will count heavily on "good prospects," Steve Hogarty (6 feet, 1 inch), up from the frosh squad, and Dick Borger (5 feet, 8 inches) and Ray Cevera (5 feet, 11 inches), up from the jayvee squad, to plug the starting quintet's two remaining holes. He will retain a varsity of about 10 boys from 35 who have tried out, with Russ Watson (5 feet, 10 inches) certain to stick around as an understudy for Kovalakides.

This will be campaign No. 3 for Borzok as head coach. Though, quite naturally, he will be aiming for his best record to date, he declined comment this week on a "new attack," featuring Trotman as the main attraction, which could earn him such a mark. Nor will George Povlaitis, his able assistant, or Bob Sorenson, his manager, be bribed into telling.

Princeton High fans will only have to wait until next week—December 9, to be exact—to find out what Borzok & Co. have up their collective sleeves. On that date, at 3 p.m., the Blue and White will open its 17-game slate with a home contest against North Plainfield. Then there will be two more engagements before the Christmas recess, followed by a re-opening of basketball competition on January 6. Only Hightstown, Hamilton and Ewing, each on a home-and-away basis, will be played twice during the coming season. Nine games will be home affairs, including the finale.

Poe Cup to Flippin. At the end of each football season, Princeton University awards the John Prentiss Poe Memorial Cup to "that member of the football team who,

PHS Trio on County Team

Despite one of its most lackluster overall records in recent years (3-5), Princeton High's football team fared well this fall against Mercer County opponents (3-1) and impressed sports writers often enough to place three players on the 1955 Times-Advertiser All-County eleven. Only Lawrenceville School gained as many starting positions on the coveted first string.

Chosen from the Little Tigers' spirited club were Captain Frank DiMeglio, 6-foot 1-inch, 192-pound tackle who disregarded various injuries to compete long and hard; Lee Ammerman, lanky 6-foot, 4-inch, 165-pound end who proved a vital performer on defense; and Marv Trotman, much-acclaimed 165-pound tailback who provided PHS foes with genuine triple-threat head aches and dominated the attack in each game. Afforded third-string honors was Matt Hafenmaier, burly guard who will serve as a co-captain of the 1956 Princeton High team.

Three other Princeton youths, all graduates of PHS, were selected for all-county laurels as a result of their fine play with Peddie School. Bob Richey, 5-foot 10-inch, 170-pound center, and Jim Thompson, 6-foot, 190-pound tackle each made the first string. Richey for the second straight season. Bill Rodefeld, Peddie's other rock-ribbed tackle, earned a third string berth along with Hafenmaier and Jim Lavan, the Hun School's aggressive co-captain fullback from Trenton.

in addition to proving himself a player of ability, has exemplified loyalty and devotion to Princeton's football interests, courage, manliness, self-control and modesty, perseverance and determination under discouraging conditions, observance of the rules of the game and fairness towards opponents."

Last Monday night, at the University's annual football banquet, the Poe Cup for 1955 was presented to Royce N. Flippin Jr., injured captain who played only enough to confirm the ability he had shown in his first two varsity years, but lived up to all other qualifications of the storied trophy without leaving the Tiger bench.

Described as "a great leader" by Coach Charles W. Caldwell Jr., who regards Flippin as one of the most versatile backs he has ever coached, the brilliant tailback was limited to brief appearances in only three games due to a pre-season knee injury. But his inspirational leadership in all nine contests, even though restricted to the sidelines most of the time, was instrumental in bringing the 1955 Ivy League championship to Old Nassau.

Outstanding on both offense and defense, Princeton's 84th football captain accounted for 1103 —Continued on Page 22 yards gained as a sophomore and last year won All-East ranking and unanimous All-Ivy League backfield honors. He returned to action for spot duty against Yale four weeks ago to score the tell-tale touchdown, and the following week against Dartmouth he helped set up the TD which gave his team Princeton's 14th Ivy League grid title and a season record of seven wins and two losses.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Royce N. Flippin of Montclair, "Flip" prepared for Princeton at Montclair High School, where he was a four-letterman for three years in football, basketball, track and baseball. In addition to his studies in the Economics and Sociology Department at Old Nassau, the 21-year-old senior plays second base for the varsity baseball team, and has been among the top hitters in the Eastern Intercollegiate League for the past two springs.

his plans. Originally, the project was to include 92 homes.

Seek to Protect Wild Game. All landowners between Princeton and Blawenburg were urged this week by members of the newly formed Cherry Valley Wild Game Protective Association to join their organization at once and combat the damaging influence of careless or law-breaking hunters in the area. To date, 31 residents in control of some 3,000 acres have added their names to the association's ranks.

M. M. Wilson of Mountain View Road, president of the new group, said the association has taken steps already to protect wild game in the woods between Princeton and Blawenburg. Sheriff's deputies have been employed to patrol the area and some property owners have announced their intentions to pay a $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person found hunting illegally on their land.

Pointing out that three of only an estimated 10 white deer remaining in the entire state make their habitat in the wooded sections of this district, Mr. Wilson said the association hopes to enlist the aid of the State Fish and Game Department to protect the rare animal. Also, he indicated they will attempt to persuade the federal government to help guard the white deer as zealously as it does whooping cranes and other disappearing species.

Explaining the urgent need for the new organization, its first president issued this statement: "Residents of our area complain that, in recent years, gunners have shown no consideration at all for property or lives. They have trespassed on farm and woodlands even when these have been fully posted according to law. Gunners from places as far distant as Brooklyn and Camden have been utterly ruthless in shooting young deer, both female and male, and in killing such unusual game as wood ducks, wood cocks and white and blue heron."

All landowners between Somerville Road to the east and the Rosedale-Hopewell Road to the west have been invited to join the association by contacting Mr. Wilson or Mrs. William R. Rossmasser of Blawenburg, secretary of the organization. The association area's northern boundary will be the Hopewell - Blawenburg-Rocky Hill Road and the southern boundary will be the Borough limits of Princeton.

In addition to the officers, those who have put their properties in the protected category are: Bernard Peyton, Frank Critchlow, Atherton Hobler, Charles Seyfarth, Eugene H. Hoffman, J. L. Porter, Bruce Gould, E. H. Welle-meyer, H. C. Sturhahn, Rene Leon, H. Wakefield Holly, Dr. De-Witt H. Smith, Roger Kirkpatrick, William Sayen, Dean Mathey, Ledlie I. Laughlin, Charles Noble, Lawrence Benson, David McAlpin, Bernard Kilgore, Karl D. Pettit, George Gallup, B. S. Petersen, C. R. P. Rodgers, George Brake-ley, Louis Verbeyst, Mrs. E. M. Stoltzfus, Daniel T. Pierce and William Dougherty.

Branch Post Office Planned. Postmaster Charles F. Murray announced this week that the Post Office Department has authorized solicitations of bids for a proposed branch post office in the Princeton Shopping Center. If constructed, it would serve the public in handling parcel post, the sale of stamps, money orders and registry service.

Forms for prospective bidders and other information may be obtained from Mr. Murray at the post office. The deadline for so doing is December 10.

So the Blind May See. A new record will be established by the Princeton Braillists this week when 11 women gather for the first in a series of weekly braille lessons under the tutelage of Mrs. Sumner Emerson, qualified instructor from Short Hills. The group, which will meet each Thursday for several months, will be the largest ever sponsored by the Princeton organization.

Purpose of the lessons, according to Mrs. Marie Jarvis, treasurer of the Princeton Braillists, will be to teach the women, including eight from Trenton and three from Princeton, how to read, make and teach braille. It will be a difficult as well as highly useful course, she observed, pointing out that, to become a qualified braillist, a candidate can commit only one error in every six pages of braille-making and, after failing the qualification test twice, cannot earn the title.

News of the Churches

Trinity to Expand. Members of Trinity Parish have authorized their Vestrymen to proceed with plans to expand the present church through construction of a new church school and chapel. It was announced this week. The new structure would be built at some distance from the present cluster of buildings. Members of Trinity are probably in the northeast section of Princeton.

The authorization to the vestrymen was unanimous. It was based on a two-page recommendation containing the findings of the Synod Commission on Growth of the Trinity Parish Study Group, findings assembled in a year of study and discussion.

It was emphasized to members of Trinity that the new building is not a new parish. The new structure, although it would contain a new church, would be dedicated primarily for Church School and for community activities, rather than regular services. Trinity, for its part, is not in a pinch of overcrowding most acutely in its church school, which now has 507 enrolled children, attending in two sessions.

Vestrymen emphasized that a new building, would provide more room for Trinity, not for community activities, such as Scouts, civic organizations, and the like. Financially, the program will be supported by the entire parish. Members of the vestry feel that the missionary possibilities of the new building, and its future importance to a growing area, are the most significant aspects of the proposed expansion.

Rabbi to be Installed. In ceremonies to be held this Sunday at 3 p. m. in the auditorium of Princeton Theological Seminary, Joseph H. Gelberman will be formally installed as the first full-time rabbi of the Princeton Jewish Center. The public is invited to attend.

Dr. Irving M. Levy, director of the Hill Foundation, Princeton, will deliver the invocation and three visiting rabbis will participate in the ceremonies. They are Rabbi Joshua O. Haberman of Har Sinai Temple, Trenton; Rabbi Andrew Klein of Temple Keser Israel, president of the Rabbinical Assembly of Connecticut; and Rabbi Eugene Dushinsky, Cape Town, South Africa.

Spiritual leaders and lay representatives of all religious denominations in the Princeton area and the heads of Princeton's principal educational institutions have been invited to attend. Dr. William L. Tucker of the Second Presbyterian Church, president of the Princeton Pastors' Association, will greet the assembly.

Dr. Edward T. Cone will play a piece of piano music, and the Columbus Boychoir, under the direction of Paul D. Ziegler will sing several songs. Cantor Marshall M. Glazer of Har Sinai Temple, Trenton, will also sing.

Following the ceremony there will be an informal reception honoring Rabbi Gelberman. William Miller is chairman of the installation committee, assisted by Murray Abelson, Seymour M. Bodogoff, Mrs. Jess Epstein and Mrs. Leonard Hymerling. Mrs. William Z. Abrams and Mrs. Hymerling are chairmen of the reception committee.

Norman Denard is president of the Jewish Center. Mr. Abelson is first vice-president, Mrs. Abrams is second vice-president. Mrs. M. H. Greenblatt is chairman of the Finance Committee, Mrs. James W. Schwerdt, corresponding secretary. Albert Rassinoff is the treasurer.

At the 11 a. m. worship service of the Methodist church this Sunday, the senior choir will sing Hugo Wolf's cantata, "Christmas Night". Music and words have been arranged for solo voices and mixed chorus with organ accompaniment.

The sponsoring Princeton Brailists group, now boasting 14 members, was organized in 1933 by Mrs. C. R. MacInnes and the late Mrs. Grace Loomis. Under the watchful eye of the American Red Cross until World War II, when the group branched out on its own, the Princeton Brailists taught many blind persons during its first decade of service. Mrs. Loomis was widely known for her braille feats, including a map of Princeton for Peter Putnam, author-teacher, which she created with a dressmaker's wheel.

Leaders of the local organization since the war have been Miss Helen Howe and Mrs. Betty Merritt, who distinguished themselves by concocting recipes in braille, many of which are still used by Mrs. E. L. Persing of the Brunswick Pike, a noted cook in spite of her lack of sight. They were also among those who instituted a pioneer project, working beautifully here, of sending blind youngsters to public school, with special desks and programs, for a normal education with other children.

President of the Princeton Brailists is Mrs. Helen York, who first became interested in Braille when a blind student at Cornell begged her to do the Odes of Horace in Braille and she managed it, with good success. Her latest effort was to arrange through the Jewish Guild for the Blind for the Trenton participants who will make the current braille class a welcome record-breaker.

Mme. Turkevich to Speak. Dr. Ludmilla Turkevich, a lecturer in Princeton University's Department of Modern Languages and Literatures and wife of Professor John Turkevich of the Department of Chemistry, will address

This past summer she accompanied her husband to the International Congress of Chemistry held in Zurich, Switzerland, and the Congress for Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy held in Geneva.

Mrs. Ray Bryan will be hostess in charge of the meeting. She will be assisted by Mrs. Edward Taylor, Jr., Mrs. Luman Tenney, Mrs. Lewis Thomas, Mrs. William Tucker, Mrs. Bryant Treckerman and Mrs. Frank Updike.

Christmas Dance Planned. The University League will hold its annual Christmas Dance for the faculty and friends of Princeton next Friday in Proctor Hall at the Graduate College.

Mrs. Seymour Bogdonoff is chairman of the dance committee. She is being assisted by Mrs. Edgar Edwards, Mrs. Robert Goheen, Mrs. Ben Houston, Mrs. John Knapp, Mrs. Heath Licklider and Mrs. Colin Pittendrigh.

French and Cook Move. The Law Offices of French and Cook have been moved from the First National Bank Building to a new location at 10 Nassau Street. They occupied their old office location for seven years.

The law partnership consists of Bruce H. French and Thomas P. Cook. In addition to their law practices, Mr. French is Chairman of the Department of Economics of University College, Rutgers, and Mr. Cook is President of the Princeton Community Chest.

Knight to Meet. The Princeton Knights of Columbus will hold a "charter members night" Wednesday at 8 p.m. at 111 Prospect Street. The Hon. Edward J. Patten, secretary of State of New Jersey, will be the speaker.

Mr. Patten is also State Advocate of the Knights of Columbus. The meeting is one of a series planned to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Princeton Council.

Durner, 142 Spruce Street; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Thompson, R.D. 1, Hopewell; Mr. and Mrs. Wen Chow, 84 Cuyler Road; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Larsen, R.D.

A son was born at Nassau Hospital, Mineola, L. I., to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kranzler of East Meadow, L. I. Mrs. Kranzler is the former Miss Jeanne Levine of Princeton.

Dr. and Mrs. Girard G. Harris of New York are the parents of a son born in that city. Mrs. Harris is the daughter of Professor and Mrs. Carroll C. Pratt of 114 Broadmead. Her husband, a former graduate student here, is now studying physics at Columbia.

Lawrenceville Topics

Salk Plan Announced. Amid confusion over the attitude of the Mercer County Medical Society and apparent impatience by parents, the Lawrence Township Committee has announced the community's plan for administration of the Salk anti-polio vaccine.

Mayor J. Russell Smith reported that the committee, along with Dr. William V. Carroll, township physician, and D. Stuart Gordon, health officer, had met and decided that anti-polio shots be made available to children up to the age of six.

The shots will be free to children whose parents feel they cannot pay for them. It is hoped to have the program in effect at Baby Keep Well stations in the township by the first of the year.

Possible controversy lies in the county medical society stand calling for paid vaccinations on the basis of those who can afford it and those who are "medically indigent". The latter term is not defined, and apparently it will be up to individual hospitals and clinics to decide on who should pay.

On the other hand, it is understood that parents in the township have been in the process of circulating a petition calling for municipal action on a free vaccine program.

Still awaited is a statement from the medical society on a program such as the one proposed in Lawrence, as well as developments in the vaccination of children over six years of age.

Bookmobile Schedule. The Mercer County Bookmobile schedule has been revised, with the following stops in Lawrence:

Green Street, 1:25 to 1:45 p.m.; Grandview, 1:50 to 2:20 p.m.; 156 Eldridge Avenue, 11:35 a.m. to 12 noon, Starting Wednesday, December 7, the Bookmobile will stop on alternate Wednesdays. Additional library stations are at Baker's Basin, Mrs. George Mozur, and Rosedale, Mrs. R. C. Van Doren.

Football Dinner. The football team of the Lawrenceville School will honor retiring coach Larry Tiihonen at a banquet tonight. Mr. Tiihonen is retiring after 27 years as football mentor, with Kenneth W. Keuffel succeeding him.

Charles W. Caldwell will be a guest and the speaker at the dinner. Announcement of the new football captains is also on the agenda.

Three members of this year's team have been named to the All-Mercer County football team. They are Captain Jim Legendre, Dan McFadden and Howard Pickling. Dick Baruch and Ralph Goldman were named to the second team, while Bill Cabaniss and Walter Buckley were selected for the third team.

Cub Scout Meeting. Cub Scout Pack No. 27 of Lawrenceville will meet this Friday evening at 7:30 in the Youth Center of the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church.

Cubs are reminded to bring their gifts for the Union Industrial Home, along with the ornaments they have made to trim the pack's Christmas tree.
